ASQUITH IN DUBLIN AS A PEACEMAKER

Lloyd George, in Dublin endeavoring to straighten out the affairs of Ireland following the short-lived rebellion, is being assisted in his task by Premier Asquith. The photograph was made while Mr. Asquith was present at a review by Gen. Sir John Maxwell in Dublin of the Trinity College Officers' Training corps and Irish Association Voluntary Training corps, who took an active part in quelling the revolt. From left to right, General Maxwell, Lady Wimborne, Mr. Asquith, Miss Grosvenor, and Bonham Carter.

RED CREEK FLOWS BY VERDUN CEMETERY

In this cemetery lie thousands of French soldiers killed in Verdun battles. In front of their resting place there flows "Le Ruisseau Rouge" (the Red creek), so called by the soldiers because time and again it has been the scene of bloody conflict. This cemetery is actually on the Verdun battlefield and the thousands of graves and crosses may be bombarded and tramped over any time.

TWO FAMOUS FRENCH WARRIORS

Georges Carpentier, the famous French pugilist, and Lieutenant Navarre, the "Fokker killer," who has just brought down his sixteenth German war plane. The aviators are standing in front of Navarre's machine, and it will be noted that the lieutenant has tied around his neck his taismen, a lady's silk stocking. Carpentier is now a trained aviator and skillful pilot.

GREEK INFANTRY IN ACTION

The Greek soldiers already have had several encounters with the Bulgarians and it may be war will ensue before long. The photograph shows Greek infantry in action.

CHARLES WARREN FAIRBANKS

New photograph of former Vice President Charles Warren Fairbanks of Indiana.

Bibles on Watch Chains.

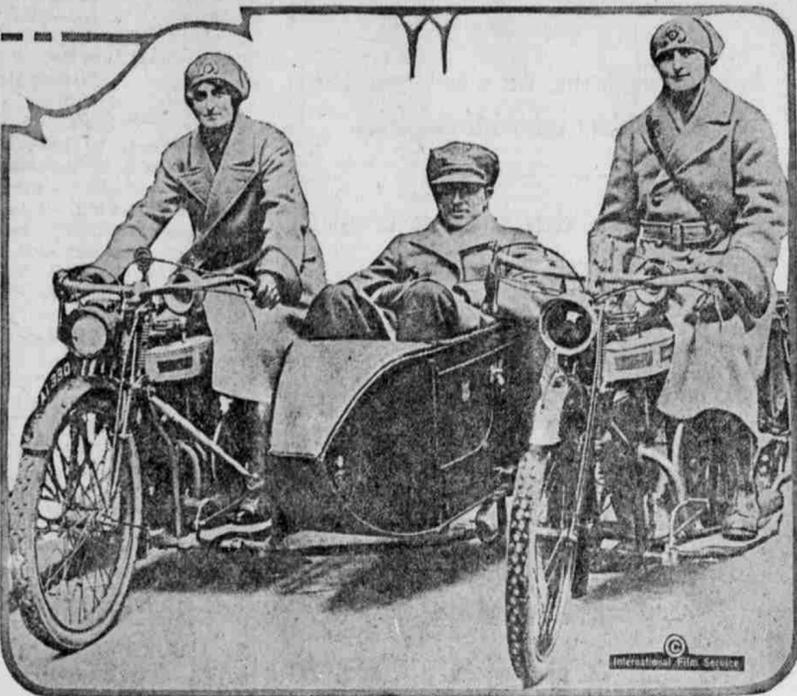

The devout in all lands have their own particular way of giving outward demonstration to their piety. In Russia it frequently takes the form of wearing miniature Bibles as charms on the watch chain. They are got up in attractive form about an inch square and three-eighths of an inch in thick-ness and contain the first five books of the Old Testament. The text of the book is in Hebrew and the titles in Latin. It is true that the book could not be read without the aid of a powerful magnifying glass, but that does not trouble the Russian "uncle" guide; he places great reliance on the fact that he carries the "Word" on his person.

Making Progress.

"When I started out in business," said Mr. Comrox, "I made it a rule never to work less than ten hours a day."

"You have succeeded wonderfully." "Yes. It wasn't long before I had built up a business big enough to keep me going 18 or 20 hours a day."

HEROINES OF PERVYSE VISIT LONDON

A remarkable trio are the Baroness De T'Serglaes, her husband, the baron, and Miss Chisholm, who are shown in this photograph made in London shortly after their arrival from the front where they spent 19 months. They went out almost at the beginning of the war, and the ladies won for themselves the title, "Heroines of Pervyse." They have been awarded the highest of all Belgian military orders by King Albert. The baron has been twice decorated by King Albert for bringing down German aircraft. The combination motorcycle shown here was especially designed by the baroness for use at the front.

REORGANIZED SERBIAN ARMY JOINS THE ALLIES

Reorganized and re-equipped, a Serbian army of 100,000 has joined the forces of the allies in Greece. The photograph shows part of the first section of this army marching to the camp at Saloniki.

SENATOR A. B. CUMMINS

Latest snapshot of Albert B. Cummins, United States senator from Iowa.

Eternally Rebuked.

A large firm in Aberdeen, says Pearson's Weekly, recently engaged an office boy a raw country youth. It was part of his duties to attend to the telephone in his master's absence. When first called upon to answer the bell, in reply to the usual query, "Are you there?" he nodded assent. Again the question came, and still again, and each time the boy gave an answering nod. When the question came for the fourth time, however, the boy, losing his temper, roared through the telephone: "Man a' ye blind? I've been noddin' me head off for the last half hour!"

It Works, Too.

A small boy's idea of leaving foot-prints on the sands of time is to sneak across a newly-made cement walk—Columbus, Ohio, Citizen.

JOLLY MILLERS OF NOTTINGHAM

The "Jolly Millers" of song and story have given way, like other time-honored occupations filled by men, to women. Nottingham, England, has a number of girl millers. They attend to all the work excepting the heavy weight lifting, which is done by men. Garbed in overalls, from early dawn till set of sun the "Jolly Millers" go about their task with a song on their lips.

Arab Brickmakers.

Arab laborers are now successfully operating two American brickmaking machines in what is said to be the original site of the Garden of Eden. When the contract was given by the Turkish government to a British company, the use of concrete was considered. When this plan proved too expensive, it was decided to use bricks made by the Arabs in the vicinity. But these bricks were made by hand, and were as costly as the concrete. Machines for making bricks were next imported from England, Germany and Belgium, and each was in turn found to be too complicated to be used by the Arabs. Finally a couple of American brickmaking plants were installed, and these proved so simple that the laborers could easily work them. Those in charge of the scheme to irrigate the Tiro-Euphrates valley are so pleased with the results that other kinds of machines are being sent there from America.

Go to War in Autos.

The soldier goes to battle nowadays just as you go to your office, shop, or mill—in a motor-bus or tramcar. Eighty thousand men went into the battle of the Marne in taxicabs from Paris. Now motorbuses are working like tramcars all along the front. They form an almost endless procession.

Plain Speech.

"I'm a plain-spoken person," said the aggressive man. "That's lucky. You're at least one subscriber who saves the telephone operator the trouble of asking you to repeat your number."

STATE NEWS BRIEFLY TOLD

The Latest Gleanings From All Over the State.

TOLD IN SHORT PARAGRAPHS

Alleged to have become unbalanced mentally from constant reading of the Bible, Peter Leas, a blacksmith, forty-one years old, of Hyde Park, murdered Abraham Fiek, a farmhand, about fifty-six years old, almost severing his head with an ax. Leas made no effort to escape and was arrested an hour after-ward. He said he had been prompted to murder by a charcoal burner who lives in the mountains near his home and by his reading of the Seventh Book of Moses, "A Handbook for Bible Readers and Christian Workers," and a memorandum book in which were written numerous scriptural messages were found in his pockets.

Practically the entire $50,000 estate of Henry Close, a native of Berks county, who died more than a year ago in Philadelphia, goes to the improvement of Berks county cemeteries and maintenance of graves of relatives, according to an opinion and adjudication just filed by Judge Gummey in the Orphans' Court of Philadelphia. The will was contested by the next of kin and by the Western Home for Poor Children, of Philadelphia, which the will provides shall inherit any bequests that may fall.

Lightning played a peculiar prank when it struck the home of Andrew Levans, Shamokin. It took a down course through the chimney and wrecked the kitchen range, the lids flying in all directions. Mrs. Levans and daughter were made unconscious by the shock. The home was set afire, but was extinguished with little damage.

A gift of $2,500 has been received from Charles M. Schwab by the committee having in charge the erection of the new $25,000 Archives Building of the Moravian Church, Bethlehem. More than $10,000 of the needed amount has been subscribed. In this building will be placed historical documents dealing with the early history of this country.

Mayor Jones, of Coatesville, whose election is contested by Rev. T. W. McKinney, was deprived of jurisdiction over the police force by City Council. An ordinance was passed on first reading abolishing the office of city detective, giving that duty to the chief of police, and taking the direction of the police force out of the Chief Executive's hands.

Eleven cars were smashed and burned at Slate Run, when a truck broke on an Erie fast freight car was running over the New York Central tracks to transfer a big shipment of sugar bound from Honolulu to Port Richmond to the Reading at Williamsport. Among the cars burned were three of sugar, two of automobiles and three of wool in sacks.

Burglars entered the home of the late Judge D. Green, at Pottsville, and secured loot worth $1,000. In a chest, which they ransacked, valuables valued at $4,000 were overlooked. The robbery was perpetrated during the absence of the family, even the two domestics being away from the premises.

D. Homer Brodbeck, thirty-five years old, was killed at the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company's plant, Tyrona. Sent to the second floor to see why a conveyor had stalled, he evidently jumped over the guard rail to adjust the machinery and was caught in the belt.

Judge Freas decreed that no marriage licenses should be issued in Luzerne county to minors under the age of sixteen years. Aldermen, justices of the peace and marriage license clerks have been informed that the age limit is sixteen years. Consent of the parents makes no difference.

Paul Bihlmeier, of Bethlehem, won the ten dollar prize in science at the Moravian College commencement exercises. Leroy S. Allen, of South Bethlehem, was granted a degree of A. B. The degree of D. S. was conferred upon Wilfred E. Vogler, of Nazareth.

John Chesnik, aged thirty-two, in South Bethlehem, to attend a christening, was killed by a fall from a secondary window in which he was sitting to escape the heat.

Mrs. Annie Kettle, of Sweet Valley, was awarded a divorce from her husband, Martin Kettle, because he had made a draught horse of her and her daughters and compelled them to draw a plow.

Directors of the Middle Coal Field Poor District have awarded the contract for the erection of a greenhouse near the buildings of the district at Fairtown for $2,000. It will be used exclusively to raise plants for the poor district farm.

Postmaster Jacob J. Clinker's resignation of last has been accepted by the Postoffice Department. No one could be found to take the Postport job, which pays thirty dollars per month, and the office will be abandoned.

Northampton County P. O. S. of A. will raise money to erect a memorial to the memory of Governor Wolfe, who is regarded as the founder of the public school system of this State, and who was a native of Northampton county.
